SUMMARY.

There are said to be persistent rumors that the relations between Denmark and Germany are strained to a dangerous point. Lord Derby says he does not agree that there is any such danger. He believes it will be all over the winter.

After his visit to the Western front he felt, as an even greater certainty of victory.

Mr. Douglas Haig reports that heavy rain is falling on the Western front.

There is considerable hostile artillery action south of the Ancre.

The British have taken upwards of 100 prisoners during the last 48 hours.

A battle, lasting all day, was fought on a German front, between Le Prie Farm and the Fosse Farm.

The enemy attempted to dislodge the British from the positions they recently captured. The British resisted magnificently and repulsed the attack.

They repulsed all attacks by cross machine-gun and artillery fire, and maintained all their positions.

The British fell back in disorder, the ground was covered with corpses.

The Germans in the Bouvencourt sector, after several sanguinary attacks, failed to dislodge the British from the village.

The French by an irresistible counter-attack, drove them out at the point of the bayonet.

The British secured a document signed by a German officer, which was a statement of the capture of a German prisoner of war.

A confidential document has been found on the German front, signed by the chief of the German Army.

It states that it is certain the Allies will win the war.

It is a remarkable document, as it is the first time that the German high command has admitted that the Allies will win.

It is a document which is of great importance, as it shows that the German high command is aware of the fact that the Allies will win.

THE SOMME

GREAT ENEMY ATTACK

FRENCH STAND FIRM

ROUMANIANS

ATTACK IN DOBRUDJA

LOSS OF PETROSENY

There has been further heavy rain on the Somme front.

The Germans counter-attacked the new French position with great violence and determination, but were everywhere repulsed, with heavy losses.

It is reported that the Roumanians have resumed the offensive in the Dobrudja area.

In Transylvania, near the Roumanian border, the Austrians have retaken the town of Petroseny.

The Bulgarians are stubbornly resisting the advance of the Allies on the western flank at Salonica.

Greece is reported to have sent a Note to Germany, demanding the return of the Greek army corps which surrendered at Kavala.

THE SOMME FRONT.

MORE HEAVY RAIN.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting at midnight on Wednesday, says: "There has been heavy rain. There was considerable hostile artillery activity southward of the Ancre."

We made prisoners of upwards of 100 Germans in the last forty-eight hours.

General Sir Douglas Haig in his noon report on Wednesday says: "The situation is unchanged."

We repulsed last night several determined counter-attacks southward of the Ancre.

Our artillery destroyed two gun emplacements and exploded an ammunition store. We had a successful minor enterprise southward of Arras. We cleared out 200 yards of German trenches, inflicting casualties.

GERMAN LOSS IN GUNS.

We captured a document signed by the German command, dated August 24, 1916. It states: "The situation of our guns in the last few months has been considerably in excess of the production. It is equally true of our reserves of ammunition, in which there has been a serious diminution. It is the duty of all ranks, not only the artillery, to endeavour to remedy this serious state of things. You must seriously endeavour to preserve material, otherwise it will be impossible to make good the losses and place new formations in the field."

VIOLENT ATTACKS ON FRENCH.

A French communiqué, issued at midnight on Wednesday, says: "South of the Somme, after a whole day's battle, on a three miles front between Lezardrieu Farm and Bois d'Abbe Farm, the enemy attempted to dislodge us from the positions recently captured. Our troops resisted magnificently, and repulsed all the attacks by gas machine guns and artillery fire. We maintained all our positions."

Four waves of attackers at the approaches to Lezardrieu Farm were broken up. The enemy fell back in disorder, and the ground was covered with corpses.

The Germans in the Bouchevignes sector after several sanguinary checks, gained a foothold in the north-eastern part of the village. They were driven out later at the bayonet point by a irresistible counter-attack.

Prisoners confirm the reports of heavy enemy losses.

An earlier communiqué stated: "The Germans attacked our positions from Chéval to the Somme. Our machine guns and certain of the repulsed them. A vigorous counter-attack threw out the Germans who had penetrated our advanced trenches in the southern part of the sector."

There has been heavy artillery fire at Bouchevignes, Somme, and in the Vosges.

GERMAN REPORT.

A German communiqué states: "We drove out the French from a small portion of a trench they retained on the west slope of Mort Homme, west of Verdun, capturing 85 prisoners and 8 machine guns. Our patrol on the Champagne, on the nights of the 18th and 19th, captured 46 French and Russian prisoners."

WHAT GERMANY THINKS.

A "confidential" document found on a prisoner on the Somme front and signed by the Chief of Staff of the Third German Army, and dated the 14th, states: "It is certain the Allies will make formidable and more terrible attacks. The present fighting is only a prelude to more important battles. Therefore, it is essential that all troops remain, at any cost, and to the last man, rather than concede ground. Officers must be able to obtain such a promise from their men as will be court-martialled if they do not."

An official paper found on a prisoner, a German major, refers to the new British armoured cars, and says: "The cruelty of these new engines equals their efficiency. They must be taken to combat the machine guns."

GALLANT BRITISH

HAPPY IN BAD WEATHER.

"A LAUGH FOR THE TANKS."

LONDON, Sept. 19.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, writing from the British headquarters in France, says: "Such foul weather seems to bring us back into winter with mud, rain, and a bank of mist, which makes it impossible for aeroplanes to see, the gunners to shoot, or the infantry to signal their whereabouts, but it is a great sight to watch the crowds of troops marching, their heads high, with glistening waterproofs and steel helmets, into the firing line, utterly refusing to surrender their good spirits. I have been spending four days among the men who have broken the Fiers line. The most striking discovery was that great deeds accomplished by the newest troops. Some of Lord Derby's recruits were engaged. The older hands wondered how they would stick it, but the newcomers did not hang back. They leapt into the German trenches with the spirit of the fighters of old. They carried out their duty bravely, having one of the hardest points to attack. Young civil servants and city clerks fought stoutly and endured all trials with stoicism. Yet they had a laugh after the battle for the fantastic adventures of the tanks."

The Canadians won great glory on Friday and Saturday. They carried out their duty bravely, having one of the hardest points to attack.
